What Will a Respectful, Prejudice-Free Community look like?

What will a respectful prejudice-free community look like? Let's just say your school is bringin cans in for people that don't have the money or the job. You don't know what race you might be helping out but you know that there is someone out there that need your help. Don't bring in cans just to say oh I brought more than you did. Do it for the people who need the cans of food. Please show that you are at least helpful. Be nice to your parents and put some of your money in so you can buy some cans. Try to help and support your community.

One way that I see where there should be a prejudice free community is helping out the sick people. When I was doing girl scouts my troop and I helped the Ronald McDonald House. My troop and I would bring food and would cook it for Ronald McDonald people. We all would do decorations for each and every table. The most fun part is when we helped serve them since they had been in the hospital all day with their children. We did not care if they were black, white, or Chinese, or any other type of race. We just knew that they had sick kids, and we wanted to let them know that we cared. When you help the needy you don't get paid with money. But you do it any way. You do get that feeling in your heart that makes you feel really good. That is more than what money can buy. You do have a really good time helping your community.

Another way you can help out the community is by reading to people in the retirement home. It's fun to read out loud to the retirement people. When I grow up and I can go anywhere, I would like to give up my spare time to read to people in the retirement homes. They would not look at my race. They would be very grateful that I was there with them reading and laughing with them. This is just how I see it in my eyes that we should have a prejudice free community. There is so much that adults could learn if they would see the world like us children do.

Say you are playing with your friends and you guys are wakin and you see this Chinese kid and no one would play with her. I would not just pass her, I would say hi what's your name. So don't be judgmental to kids that are not your race, be nice and you never know if they will be your best friend.
